

Privacy Policy for the NZ AJS & Matchless Owners Register Inc

The Privacy Act 1993 controls how 'agencies' collect, use, disclose, store and give access to 'personal information'.

Personal information is information about identifiable, living people and therefore relates to members of the Register.

As such, the information that you, as members give us on your application forms, rally registration and any other form of documented detail is held on file by the committee.

This information can only be released with your permission.

You can elect to agree to have the information passed on the Area Reps, or to members enquiring or NOT.

If you choose not to have the information made available then only the members of the committee who need your details in normal business of the register will be able to access it.

You can change this option at any time.
